- Identify how to develop these skills so you can gain the benefits immediately
- Learn the one quality that will create more ease in your role as a leader

With many teams working remotely and others working around social distancing guidelines, creating a cohesive workplace culture is challenging. Leaders with a coaching mindset are needed now more than ever to bring teams together around a common goal and help them succeed in the new normal.

Session Objectives:

- Learn to support team members with regular check-ins
- Get better at giving and receiving feedback
- Take an agile approach to goal setting
- Model personal and professional growth
